COMMENTS FROM THE COOP

LOOKING AHEAD TO 2017

By Craig Hunter, Zone 9 Director

As we look forward to the next year as egg and pullet farmers, let's look at a few issues which I believe will continue to impact our industry.

The importance of telling our story

As consumers get two or three generations away from a farm and continue to get bombarded with misinformation about our farms, it is more important than ever that we "tell our story" in any way which works for each of us as individual farmers.

I have had many opportunities to speak to hundreds of consumers on tours at our farm, at the Canadian National Exhibition, the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair and local fairs and events. Transparency is certainly becoming an important part of what we do as farmers. Part of our story must continue to include promoting our fair farm pricing system which allows Canadian consumers to have access to nutritious, affordable and locally produced eggs and egg products.

The good news is that consumers seem very happy about how we are producing eggs for them, with very few exceptions. Egg Farmers of Ontario's Consumer Choice Engagement Strategy will be an important part of this critical issue and hopefully, the majority of our large retailers and foodservice customers will continue to provide choice to consumers.

Animal Welfare

This will continue to be an important issue in our industry. After approximately three years of Code Development Committee meetings, we will soon have a new Code of Practice which has been made possible by building consensus amongst a very broad group of stakeholders.

Even though we are highly influenced by what is happening in the U.S. egg industry, the National Farm Animal Care Code process is a unique system whereby all sectors of animal agriculture can develop "Made in Canada" solutions to animal welfare challenges. During the next year, Egg Farmers of Canada, along with the provincial egg boards, will be developing an updated animal care audit which will guide us on how we handle and house our layers and pullets in the future.

Avian Influenza

Currently, outbreaks of avian influenza are having a devastating effect on the poultry industry in the European Union and other parts of the world. We need to take the issue of biosecurity on our farms VERY seriously.

Politics in both Canada and the U.S.

We will need to maintain a very proactive position on trade issues which might affect our industry.

Antibiotic Use

We continue to read about a variety of animal products being promoted as "antibiotic free." Some consumers are influenced by this type of promotion and are looking for products which are antibiotic free. In reality, eggs could be considered to be in that category already; however, we have to recognize that our use of antibiotics is not zero.

We must continue to utilize the best possible vaccination programs, along with excellent cleaning, disinfection and biosecurity programs to satisfy consumer demands and keep our birds healthy. Even though the general public should be more concerned about the over-prescribing of antibiotics in human medicine, when it comes to the issue of antibiotic resistance, we will still need to do our best to meet the challenge of "no antibiotic use" as part of our ongoing egg business.

THREE EASY WAYS TO SIMPLIFY BREAKFAST

The latest addition to Egg Farmers of Ontario's (EFO's) recipe resources has arrived just in time to make your breakfast a breeze!

Breakfast & Brunch Beauties is a double-sided, accordion-style pamphlet featuring three delicious brunch recipes: Crispy Breakfast Quesadillas, Easy Festive Brunch Bake, and Canadiana

Eggs Benedict. The resource is perforated to easily fit into your recipe box.

UPDATE: EUROPEAN OUTBREAK OF AVIAN INFLUENZA

In November 2016, an outbreak of H5N8 Avian Influenza (AI) was declared in 10 European countries; including Austria, Croatia, Denmark, Germany, Hungary, the Netherlands, Poland, Sweden, Switzerland and Russia. This prompted England and Scotland to declare an AI prevention zone, which requires all bird keepers to implement additional biosecurity measures to protect their flocks from wild birds.

With this in mind, we remind you to follow these biosecurity measures:

- Every farmer, employee and every person entering all poultry barns must put on clean footwear, protective clothing and follow all biosecurity protocols on every entry into barns.
- Minimize visits to other poultry production sites and avoid any co-mingling of birds or contact with outside/wild birds.
- Avoid exchanging equipment with other poultry production sites.
- Ensure all vehicles/farm equipment that access the barn vicinity are properly washed and disinfected and that the laneway is restricted/secured.
- Ensure adequate training of farm and company personnel in biosecurity and disease prevention.
- Ensure adequate control of wild birds and rodents.
- Have a pressure washer or hose available to wash tires and equipment, and make this available to all service vehicles.
- If possible, "heat treat" the barn/litter ahead of chick or poult placement (to 30 °C for a minimum of three days).

If your birds show any sign of illness, please contact your veterinarian and board immediately.
